Data Gathering

Your use of our websites and/or our services means that we can gather your information or request it from you. This includes your first names, family name, sex, date and place of birth, address, telephone number, e-mail address and passport details.

Once VisumPro is processing your application, on the application form of the country in question additional information may be required. This additional information may include data about your family situation, education, employment history, travel history and financial details. Certain visa issuing or government bodies may request additional sensitive information about ethnicity, race, religion, biometrical information and information about criminal records.

Which data we have to gather partly depends on the Issuing Body which processes your application. We only gather those data of our Clients required by an Issuing Body to process an application or to render the services requested by our Clients.

Without your permission your data are not shared with third parties. Your data are shared however with the Issuing Bodies in order to process your application. The Issuing Bodies may share your data with other (foreign) government bodies for instance to prevent terrorism.

Certain data are also shared in order to be able to render an extra service you may have requested. For instance, we can only return your documents if we share your name and address details with a courier service.

When we call in an external party to finalize a service we will only share those details required to provide the service in question. In order to protect your data we are under the obligation therefore to conclude a Processing Agreement with all our suppliers in which they agree to safely and securely store your data and to not use them for any other purpose than included in the agreement with VisumPro.

On our website sometimes you are redirected to websites of foreign embassies or other external parties. VisumPro is not responsible for the way in which these parties handle your data. Please refer to the privacy statement on the website in question.
